Lane, Crawford, Ltd.

ROUND THE SHOPS.

[By "EVE"]

Lane, Crawford's.—This week I saw something new in necklaces in the Ladies' Salon at Lane, Crawford's, ranging from tiny seed pearls to very large beads, which are very often made of wood; these look large and heavy, but are really very light, and, being painted in multi-colours, have a rather intriguing texture. Here and there are found glass necklaces of very large beads which look like so many globes and have an air all of their own. Something new is seen in the new metal chain necklet with bracelets and earrings to match; some of these are made of strands of thin wire which are twisted round each other. There are also exquisite strings of diamonds in sets of necklace, bracelets and earrings—just the thing for evening wear. Some rather attractive summer handbags have also just arrived and I noticed that plaited straps in two colours make an ideal summer bag; sponge cloth is something new and string bags are among the very latest; these latter besides being very attractive, are very hardwearing.

Gordon's.—The well-dressed woman is always very methodical over choosing her shoes as they are so very important in the effect that they have on the whole ensemble. The new shoes get lighter and lighter, and the latest displayed at Gordon's are among some of the smartest seen locally. White shoes with a touch of colour are seen a great deal and red, blue, green and black are narrowly bordered round the vamp. Evening shoes are fairly elaborate again while the sandal shoe is having a great vogue, and indulges in all kinds of striking colour schemes.

The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop has at present most amazingly beautiful array of the very latest in "Catalina" hats. It is really impossible to attempt to describe the variety and chic of the new consignment—the only thing to do is to pay a visit as soon as possible before all the most alluring models have been sold. Suffice it to say that there are some lovely plain shapes in a horse-hair material but withal very dressy, also many with the new braid effect and for tennis and other sports large shapes in Panama. "Betty Baxley" frocks have to be seen to be really appreciated and include some of the most entrancing dresses it has ever been my fortunate lot to see.

Rivelle.—Some lovely evening gowns are on view at this salon in the Gloucester Arcade, georgette, satin and taffeta being used on many of the delightful models. The organdie dresses seem especially fetching and the very up-to-date hats which have just arrived are extremely chic. There are also some very attractive silk sports or morning dresses which are all very well made and are offered at about $25.

Maddening Moments

The Burglar

Crash... bang... crash... Fearfully Peter crouches in the corner of the pantry. He is torn between horror at the thought of what is happening upstairs and passionate regret at the chance he has lost. To have got so far and bungled the thing. Simply sickening. There they are on the floor—golden brown and tempting. His delicious scrunchy "Ovaltine" Rusks—and for all the good it does him they might be in the Sahara. He wonders whether to eat one quickly before the family arrive. No good, here they are. Golly, they all look scared to death. Must have thought he was a burglar. Even Uncle Bob looks furious. Seems like a pretty bad show this. It's a bit hard on a chap not even to have had one bite... especially when they'll punish him anyway...

KNIT YOUR OWN BELTS.

Belts which are first knitted and then plaited are being shown in London. They are finished with a chromium buckle, and are so smart that it is not until they have been examined closely that one realises how easy it is to make them.

Buy a skein of three different-coloured wools, according to the colour of the frock with which the belt is to be worn. Cast on three stitches, and knit in stocking stitch until the length is decidedly more than the waist measurement. Do this with each colour, fasten them all off, and stitch the sides of each strand together so that you have three long, narrow tubes. Plait them, adjust them to the waist measurement, and fasten on the buckle.

Try this in the fashionable tricolour of red, white, and blue. Six strands could be made for a wide belt.

NEW EVENING MODES.

DETAILS THAT ADD CHIC.

The big dressmakers in London and Paris have proved once more that the skill of modern needlewomen is equal to that of the last century who are always held up to us of the present generation as having been such experts in the art of sewing a fine seam.

At every dress show one is impressed with the clever handwork that goes to decorate so many of the models. It may be in fine hemstitching, in delicate embroidery, in that patience-taxing work of making yards and yards of ruffling, in outlining fine lace designs with silk or bead embroidery or in applique work when lace is applied to chiffon or velvet on to georgette.

The Importance of Trimming.

The fact remains that the trimming of a gown is a very important detail these days, and adds much to the originality of the model.

On a modified bustle effect achieved with loops of tulle on a gown of that material, frills are introduced to give an apron effect on the skirt and to outline the low décolletage, and to form the little cape-like sleeves. Gloves put a finishing touch to the whole and are of a deeper shade than the gown.

To Give that Slim Look.

Another gown is of a different type but has many notes that make for chic. The skirt, for instance, is beautifully cut in sections, which give a slimming line to the figure. The "sections" are carried round to the back and the material is cleverly cut to cross at the back and the waist-line and are brought round the figure to form a belt that is finished with a jewelled buckle.

Satin flowers soften the plain-out décolletage. One is white like the gown, and the other is in a deep flame shade to match the lining of the long white coat.

The coat shows a cape effect made by the application of a wide band of fur extending from the base of the sleeves across the back of the coat.

Irish Lace Again.

It is possible that Irish lace will return to favour, for it is being used in conjunction with satin for many gowns. Both wool and silk lace make frequent appearance in rich shades of blue and red and the soft peach brown which is so becoming.

A very lovely material is in broché velvet in a design of black leaves on a white ground.

Jewelled effects are numerous, laces being frequently embroidered with coloured stones.

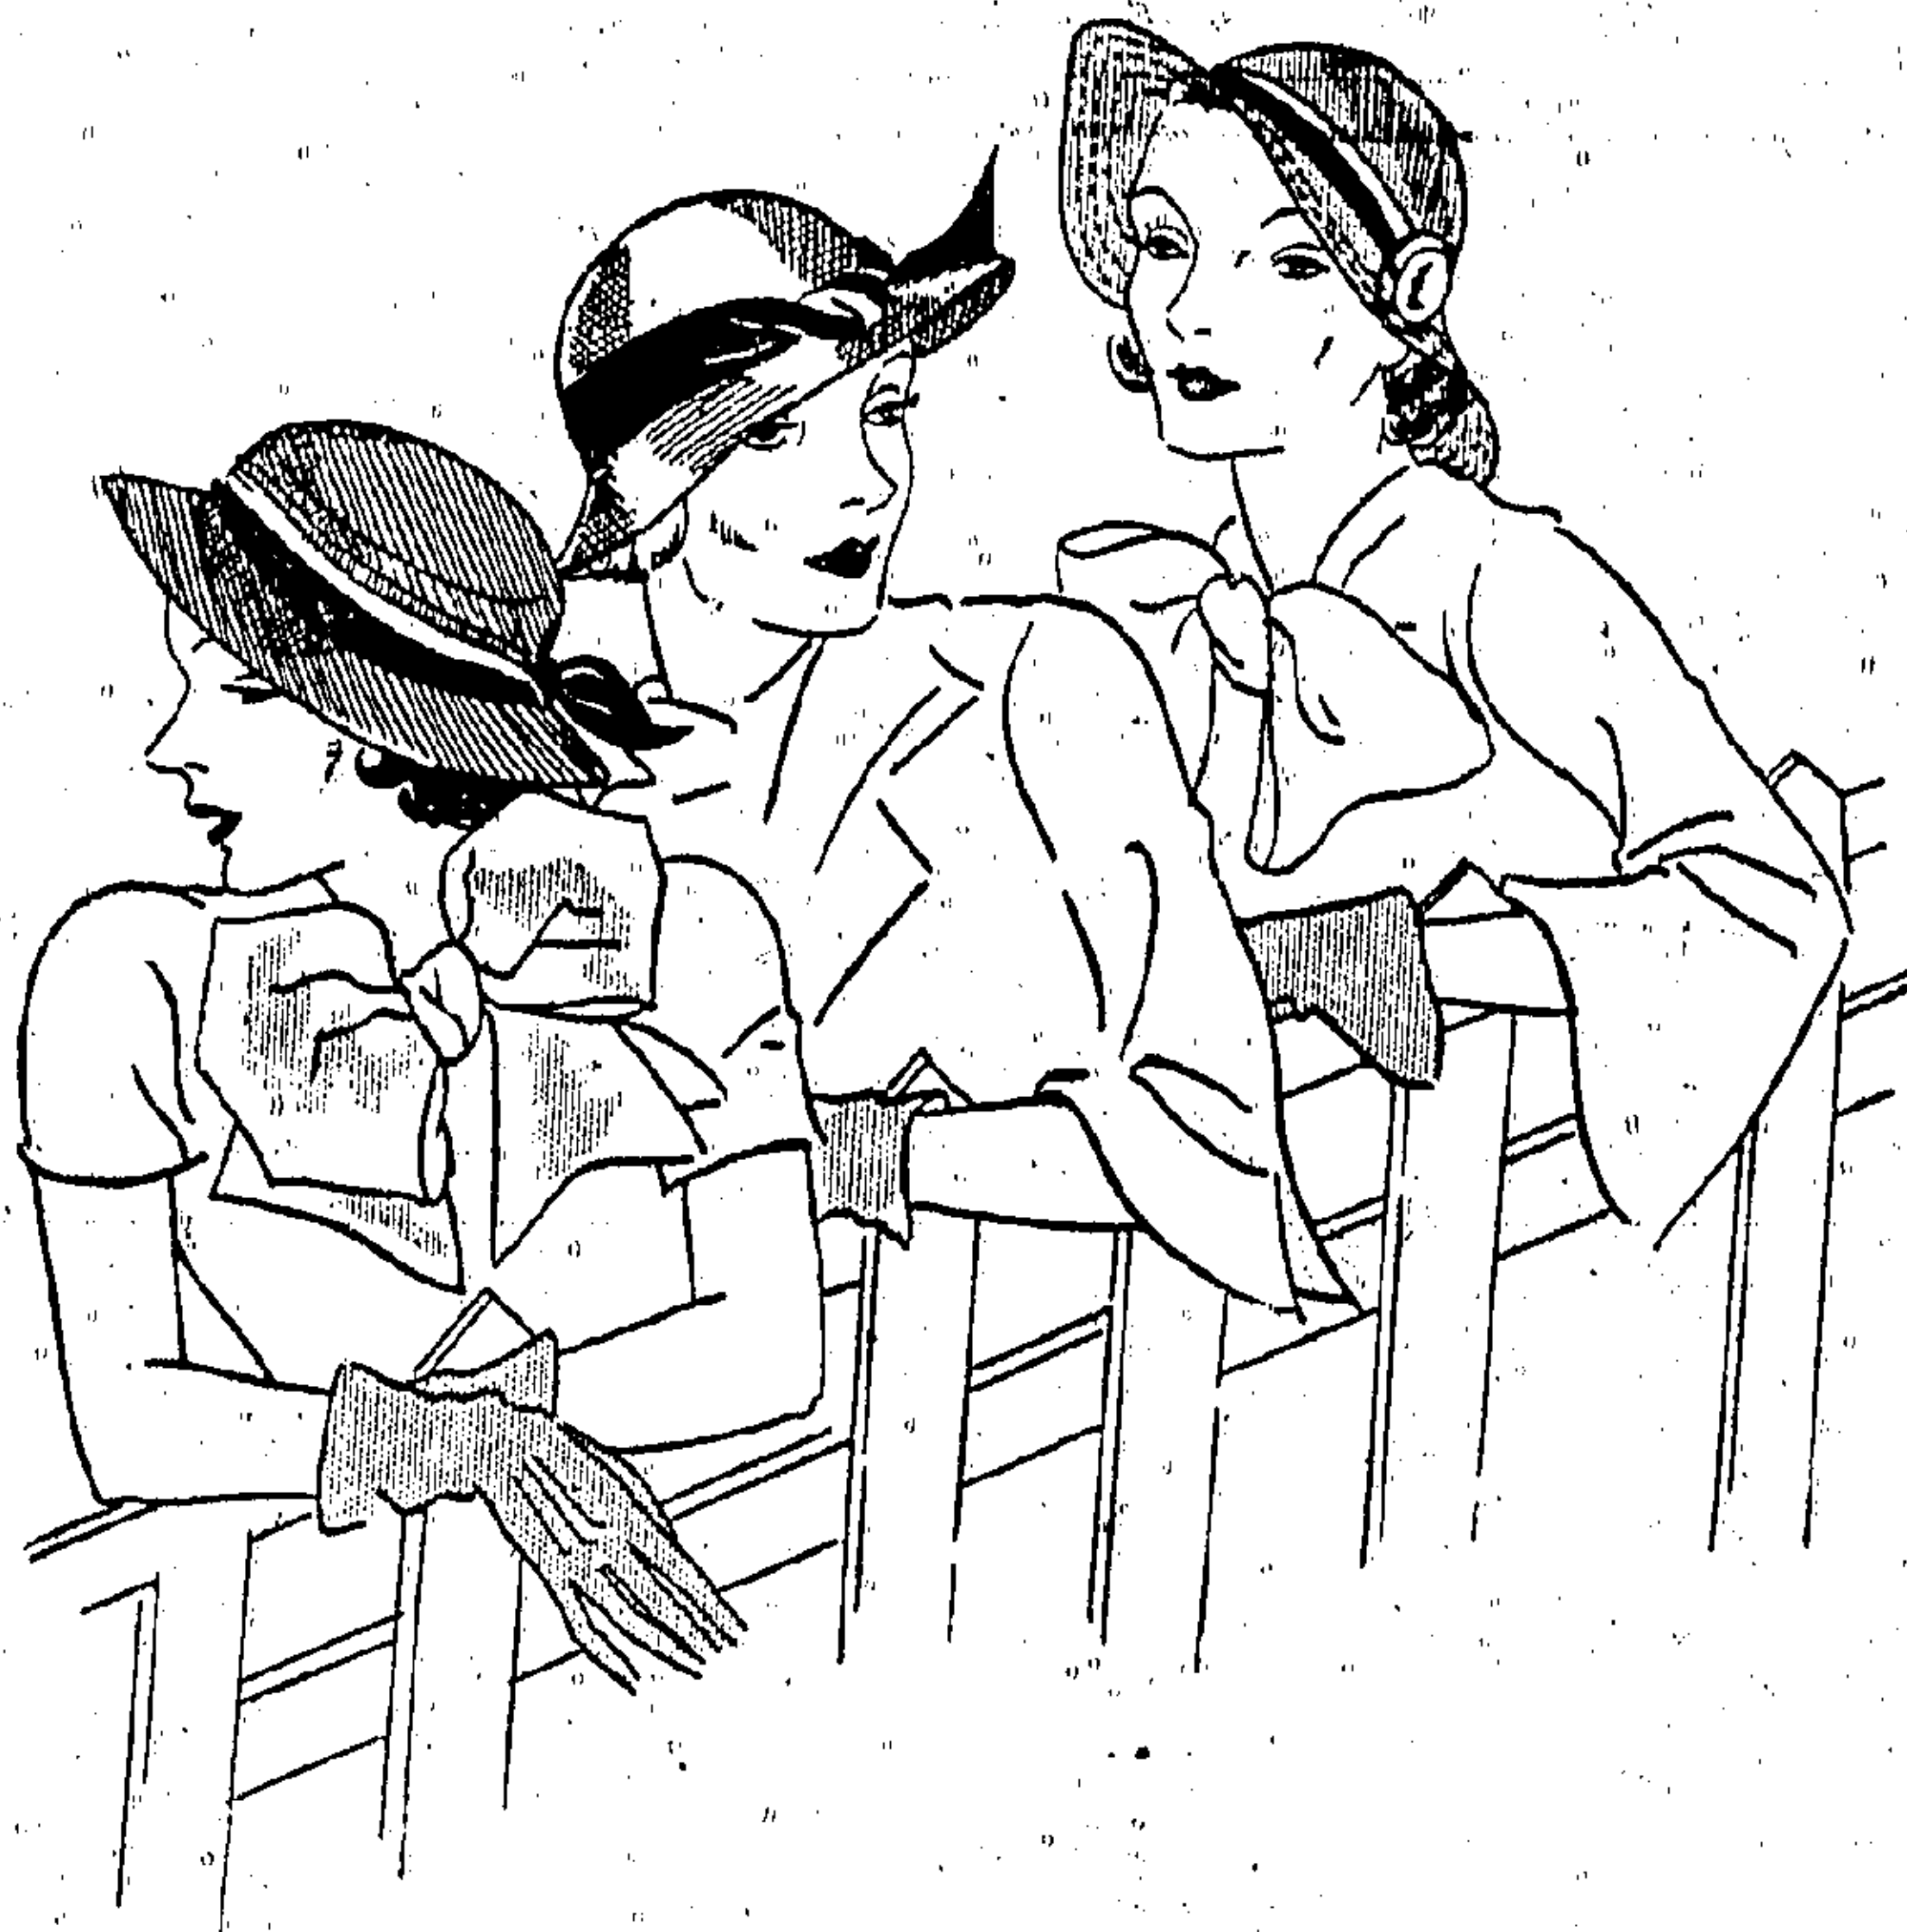

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Mutton Suet should be used only in dishes that are to be eaten hot. If put in anything that is served cold it may give a rather unpleasant flavour. A little lemon juice added always makes a great improvement when mutton suet is used in cooking.

Oiled Paper for the kitchen, grease-proof and waterproof, can be made at home. Take some sheets of strong white paper and brush them over on both sides with boiled linseed oil, which can be bought very cheaply at any ironmonger's. Hang the sheets up till thoroughly dry.

THE NEW DRESS COLOURS.

We must put a bright face on it this summer if we intend to wear the gay colours which are being shown at the mid-season collections in London and Paris. Women who try to wear these vivid blues, reds, and yellows without the "most careful make-up" will "fade out," as they say in the film studios.

Any expert decorator or artist will agree that a vivid shade of blue swamps the other colours around it, if they are neutral. It is exactly the same with the new and rather trying shade of blue which is likely to be the most popular colour of the season. Features and colouring must be well defined.

Coral or Geranium.

For this blue, red coral rouge and orange lipstick are likely to be most successful. The shade to avoid is pink; the make-up must have a touch of yellow in it. Geranium red and mandarin are also good, but if the outfit is tailored and will not be worn for very formal occasions a hint of sun tan will be becoming. Blue eye shadow, deftly used, repeats the shade of the frock very subtly and at the same time enhances the colour of the eyes.

Quite a number of women are already asking for an oil foundation for their sun tan powder, realising how well this complexion is set off by vividly coloured garments.

Lipstick and coral are the fashionable shades of red. Match them up in your make-up as closely as you can, for nothing gives a worse effect than two shades of red which do not tone. Coral can be matched perfectly in every kind of cosmetic, and so can "lipstick," which is a rather soft shade of lacquer. But if there is a hint of orange in the frock, keep to an orange make-up.

Banana yellow is a good choice for the "outdoor" woman, or for those who have a naturally tanned skin. It calls for coral or red tangerine make-up, with sun tan or banana powder applied over a foundation of gypsy oil. Canary yellow is also an outdoor shade; that is, it looks best with a complexion which has a healthy glow of colour.

Avoid Tan with Brown.

On the other hand, any appearance of tan must be avoided by women who wear brown or cinnamon—two more colours which are featured in the collections. Both will throw a faint reflection of themselves on the skin, and any addition of orange or brown to the complexion will give an unattractively sallow appearance.

For both these old favourites, aim at keeping the colouring as clear as a wild rose. Rose red, strawberries and cream, blush rose—these are the colours to use. A grease foundation is not good with browns, even for a dry skin; a powder cream will give the clearer appearance to the skin which is desirable.

Beige is one of the most difficult colours in the world to wear. Unless the make-up and accessories are perfect, the effect will be dowdy. Yet hundreds of women choose it because "beige goes with everything."

That, of course, is a fallacy. And as with black, a beige outfit will cost more than a colourful one and will require more care spent on the complexion.

Be Definite.

If the colour is a yellow beige, choose banana powder and blush-rose rouge. The lipstick, as always, must partly depend upon one's natural colouring, but it should contain the faintest tinge of yellow. A touch of chestnut eye shadow will emphasise the whole make-up beautifully.

But beiges of the oyster and slightly pinker type require a different make-up. For them there are rose red rouges and lipsticks, with eye shadow to match and bring up the colour of the eyes, and eyebrows slightly defined with a pencil.

PINK HAS COME BACK TO FAVOUR.

If you are having your bedroom re-decorated this summer, you should include pink in your possible colour schemes.

This is one of the most popular colours at the moment, perhaps because people want to wake up in a "cherry atmosphere."

"Dinky pink" was chosen by a bride for her London bedroom the other day. It does not sound attractive, but it is.

The pink paint is applied thinly over an undercoat of white, and the walls sometimes look creamy white, sometimes deep pink.

Gay and Youthful.

Mushroom pink, which painters often match from a piece of corde de chine, is a colour which looks its best with royal blue or jade-green or brown. Sugarstick pink is very gay and youthful—just the bright clear pink of "Brighton rock."

Peach pink has tinge of apricot yellow in it, and a bedroom painted in this glowing shade seems always to have the sunlight in its heart.

IF YOU HAD LIVED IN 1432.

The little girl in the centre of the picture is trying on one of the huge horned headresses that were so fashionable in the 15th century. Fine ladies wore these "hennies" in all shapes, from the heart-shaped one to the pointed spire. The long tight-waisted dresses were lavishly fur-trimmed and were cut very low in the neck.

Boys and men in the 15th century wore jaunty tunics with enormous puff sleeves, and with all the fullness of the tunic gathered to the back and front into a short frill below the waist.

On other long hair they wore high-crowned hats something like top-hats without brims.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Onion Juice can be obtained easily for flavouring by squeezing the onion on a lemon squeezer.

Smoked Cod's Roe, mashed with lemon juice and pepper, makes unusually delicious sandwiches. It requires no further cooking, and will keep for several days.

Sponge Rubber bathroom mats should be rolled up tightly after use so that the water is squeezed out of them. Then unroll and wipe with a dry cloth. These mats should not be laid where strong sunlight falls directly on them, as this may tend to make them perish and fade.

Tea can be freshly made in the kettle over the picnic bonfire. Tie sufficient tea in a muslin bag before-hand, and drop it into the kettle when the water is boiling. Or use one of the inexpensive metal infusers which can now be bought.

Vinegar, added to the water in which a chicken is boiled, adds considerably to its tenderness. Use about one dessertspoonful.

Woolen Jumpers are liable to stretch on the shoulder through laundering or long wear. When they are first bought or knitted, stitch a piece of tape firmly inside the shoulder seam, and it will never get out of shape.

THE DOG IN THE MANGER.

1.—One day, a dog found his way into a cowshed, and lay down in a manger that was full of hay. This was so nice, and soft, and warm, that he made up his mind to stay there and sleep.

2.—Out in the fields were some oxen ploughing, and when their day's work was done, they came back to the shed to be fed, and to rest. One of them went into the stall, and walked up to the manger where the dog lay, to eat his hay.

3.—Up jumped the dog at once, and began to bark loudly, and to snap at the poor, tired ox, and this made him afraid to go near the dog.

"What is the matter with you?" asked he. "This is my stall. I have been hard at work all day, and am very hungry. Pray, let me have a little of the hay to eat. I shall not harm you; and you do not want to eat it yourself."

4.—"Go away!" said the dog. "I was here first, and I am going to stay here. You must go to some other place for your hay; I will not be troubled with you."

5.—The ox, however, tried to snatch a mouthful of hay by going first to one corner of the manger and then to the other, but the dog was always too quick for him.

6.—He barked and snapped at the poor ox so much, that he could not get near the hay at all; so at last he lay down to go to sleep, without having his supper. Turning to the dog, the ox said, "You are the most wicked, selfish brute I have ever seen. You cannot eat the hay yourself, and you will not let those do so who can."

THE WIND AND THE SUN.

1.—The Wind and the Sun once began to quarrel as to which of the two was the stronger, and each boasted of the great things he could do.

2.—"Why," said the North Wind, "by using ever so little of my power, I drive ships across the mighty ocean; I turn the mill that grinds the corn, and I make the trees in the forest bend to and fro.

3.—"But when I use all my strength, I work the sea up into great waves, which I dash against the rocks, where they break into foam. I tear up trees by the roots, blow down houses, and make the tall mill-chimneys rock so much, that they fall as if they were going to fall down."

4.—"All that may be true," said the Sun, "but it does not prove that you are stronger than I am. Why, it is I who make the leaves and blossom, and fruit come upon the trees; it is I who cause the corn and grass to grow in the fields, and the flowers and vegetables in the gardens."

"I dry up the river and lakes, and the ponds and streams, and do many other great deeds."

5.—"What you say is all very good," said the North Wind, "but I still think that I am the stronger of the two. Let us settle the matter in this way. There is a man going along the road yonder. The one of us who is first able to make him take off his cloak shall be the winner."

"That will do nicely," said the Sun, "and you shall try first."

6.—Then the Wind blew a strong gust, and made the man shiver.

"My word," said the man to himself, "how cold the wind is to-day!" and he drew his cloak around him, and buttoned it up.

7.—Then the Wind blew harder and harder, till he almost tore the cloak from the man's back, but instead of making the man take off his garment, it only made him put up his big collar, and draw the cloak closer about him. He began to walk more quickly than he had yet done, so as to keep himself warm.

The Wind tried his very best, but failed; so he gave way to let the Sun have his turn.

8.—The Sun came from behind the clouds, and gave out a little of his heat. The traveller soon began to feel warm again, and he turned down the collar of his cloak, as he went on his way. The Sun smiled at this, and gave out more heat and brightness. The man soon became so warm that he undid the buttons of his cloak, and pushed his hat back from his forehead.

9.—Then the Sun tried once more, and shone as brightly as he could. The man could stand the heat no longer. He took off his cloak and his hat, and sat down on a large stone to rest himself.

10.—"There," said the Sun to the North Wind, "what do you think of that? I hope you will learn from this, that gentle means can often do more than rough ones."

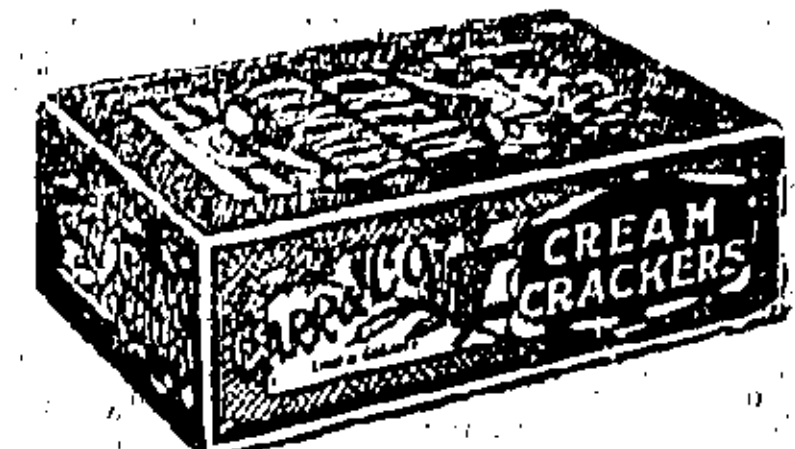

But the North Wind was very angry because he had been beaten by the Sun. He did not say anything in reply, but turned round, and flew away as fast as he could.

THE ART OF MODERN KINGSHIP.

out a moment's hesitation. "Just as I was and as anyone born to a crown is and always will be. You know how it is with the tight-rope walkers: sometimes they manage to maintain their balance until the very end of the performance; then they glean applause, no end of it. Often, however, they experience a slight vertigo; then they fall and break their necks. Who is there to decide whether the one that succeeded was a more talented tight-rope walker than the one that failed?"

Since the day I was old enough to understand that each throne is strong as its weakest mainstay, I have taken an active part in conversations revolving around the subject of that "uncertain future facing us all." Many a time while walking with the late, Czar Nicholas II along the trail connecting our respective palaces in the Crimea, I heard him discuss the relative merits of a friendly parliament and a strong police; and on many an otherwise perfect morning, while playing golf with King Edward VII in Biarritz, I listened to the frank prophecies of the father of the Triple Entente.

It is odd, but my British uncle seemed to be more pessimistic than my Russian cousin. The latter firmly believed that the imperial regime would last as long as it "pleases God;" the former bluntly told me that his then very youthful grandson—the present Prince of Wales—was to be the last King of England.

The events of the late summer of 1931 shattered to pieces the popular conception of the part King George V was playing in the affairs of the British Empire. It is a matter of historical record that on August, 23, 1931, the King saved the day by hurriedly returning from his vacation to the capital, where the leaders of the three great political parties of Great Britain were hopelessly dead-locked in their endeavors to reconcile their common loyalty to the country with their widely divergent platforms. So utterly erroneous was the public's idea as to what the King could and should do that the news of the mad all-night rush made by the royal train from Balmoral to London came in the nature of a revelation to many otherwise well-informed persons. Nobody needed to witness the conference between the King and Messrs. MacDonald, Baldwin and Samuel to realize that the sovereign who came to demand the immediate formation of a cabinet of National Union and the pleasant middle-aged gentleman, who each spring accepted the curtsies of the debutantes proved to be total and absolute strangers. Were the King to follow the constitutional interpretations of those writers who insist that the kings of England reign but never rule, he would have stayed at his castle in Balmoral, awaiting the moment when the political leaders would have finally straightened out their differences and agreed upon a decision to be confirmed by him. As it happened, the King preferred to act as he had always done before—in accordance with his own conception of the responsibilities of his job and the limitations of his prerogatives.

THE VOICE THAT BREATHES O'ER ENGLAND.

"Time never runs against the king," proclaims the classical phrase, but, in truth, time can change its habits instantaneously and swiftly if the tenant of Buckingham Palace does not constantly watch the political developments and does not possess the knack to choose the right moment to step in. Nothing in the whole career of a modern king of England is more difficult and more nerve-racking than this vital necessity to combine the shrewdness and the cunning of an experienced parliamentarian

"SECRETS OF A SECRETARY."

SUCCESS OF A CLEVER TEAM.

A trade notice states:— A team that has shared the honors of plaudits from films audiences everywhere for their combine activities in "Manslaughter," "performs" again in "Secrets of a Secretary," at the King's Theatre to-day.

Only one of the team actually performs on the screen however. She is Claudette Colbert, the charming French-American girl who graduated to films from the stage. The other member of the duo is George Abbott, who so capably directed Miss Colbert and Fredric March in "Manslaughter."

Abbott, who is rated as one of the most expert in the craft of guiding a cast of players in the delineations of their roles, is a convert to the talking screen from the Broadway stage where he established himself as one of the three or four best directors.

Abbott is also a successful playwright, having collaborated on "Broadway," "Coquette" and "Night Hostess." He not directed "Secrets of a Secretary" but also wrote the adaptation from the original tale by Charles Brackett.

In addition to "Manslaughter" he was the director of Moran and Mack's "Why Bring That Up?" "Half-Way to Heaven" and "Stolen Heaven."

Miss Colbert's films successes include "Honor Among Lovers," "The Big Pond" and "Young Man of Manhattan."

"Secrets of a Secretary" but also story of a wealthy New York society girl who marries an Argentine fortune-hunter and loses him when her father's death leaves her penniless. She is obliged to take a position as a social secretary. When the young daughter of her employer falls in love with her ex-husband, who has now turned out to be a member of a gang of jewel-thieves, the secretary is in a "tough spot." But it all comes out pleasantly, with a happy, romance ending.

Miss Colbert plays the role of the secretary. Georges Metaxa, newcomer to the talkies, plays the villainous husband. Others in the cast Betty Lowford, Herbert Marshall, Mary Boland, Hugh O'Connell and Berton Charrault.

"ROYAL BED" AT THE QUEEN'S.

AMUSING FARCE OF REGAL CUSTOMS.

A trade notice states:— Now comes the cinema's exposé of Central European royalty, dazling courts, cold but regal queens, human, playful kings, the love affairs of princesses forbidden to marry outside of the royal families.

But it's all in fun in Radio Pictures, "The Royal Bed," a delicious satire, whimsically human and real, opening to-day at the Queen's Theatre.

Remarkable Cast.

Lowell Sherman plays the title role in the picture which he also directs with a skill as subtle and keen as his acting. Nance O'Neil of stage and screen fame is the Queen who dominates and "hen-pecks" her husband; Mary Astor is the princess who has a love affair with the King's secretary, enacted by Anthony Bushell, and turns down the Crown Prince of another mythical kingdom, Hugh Trevor.

"And despite the fact that the story is witty, whimsical satire, the inside facts about royalty come to light just the same," Sherman says. "Being a king or a queen or a princess of a Central European kingdom isn't at all what one might think it, from the American point of view. We forget that royalty is very human."

Realistic Treatment.

"In 'The Royal Bed' we depict it as humanly as though we were dealing with an American real estate man and his family, following closely the brilliant Sherwood play, but taking advantage of the screen's flexibility and motion, and showing street riots, fighting over barricades, the bombardment of a city and many other things quite beyond the scope of the stage. But none of the delightful subtlety or humanness of the Robert E. Sherwood play, on which the movie is based, is lost."

Sherman has assembled a remarkable cast of featured players for the production, including Mary Astor, Nance O'Neil, Anthony Bushell, Robert Warwick, Hugh Trevor and Gilbert Emery, combining stage and screen talent most effectively.

A long, inclined rest, set at such an angle to take most of the weight off their feet but not slanted so much that it would put their full body weight on their clothes. The director also provided them with high stools on which to sit, keeping the hems of their skirts from touching the ground. The actresses found the "sitting down" standing up" device to be the more salutary for wrinklelessness.

LUPINO LANE'S COMEDY RIOT.

A MAD, MERRY MIXTURE.

A trade notice states:— With "No Lady," farcical extravaganza, opening on Sunday at the Queen's Lupino Lane has come into his own as Britain's foremost screen comedian. Here, he has material that is very much to his liking, and as mimic, tumbler and comedy opportunist, he achieves a great personal triumph in driving home his limitations as a perfect lady.

The story is one of the usual irresponsible affairs and opens with the adventures of henpecked Mr. Pog (Lupino Lane). He, at Blackpool on holiday, slips away from his spouse and proceeds to get mistaken for the representative of a foreign country anxious to prevent Great Britain winning a gliding competition. The error being discovered Mr. Pog is chased into a ladies' bath, from which he emerges coyly clad as a woman and proceeds to captivate the men.

The action now quickens, and Pog, having regained his gentlemanly status, is once again recognised by his foes, who give chase. The spectacle of him rearing hot-foot over scenic railways, leaping from hotel windows and flying boats, or giddily balancing himself on the wings of a glider is one which has never been matched in any British comedy to date.

Finally he crashes the glider on the beach and finds himself the centre of a group, who present him with a cup for winning the gliding contest.

Lupino Lane is a comedy riot; both as the hapless Pog and the astounding lady who ensnares the octogenarian Blackpool populace. Whether taking his bath in the kitchen sink of staging a song and danced turn on the pier he carries the picture on his shoulders throughout, and this is the best screen characterisation he has yet given us.

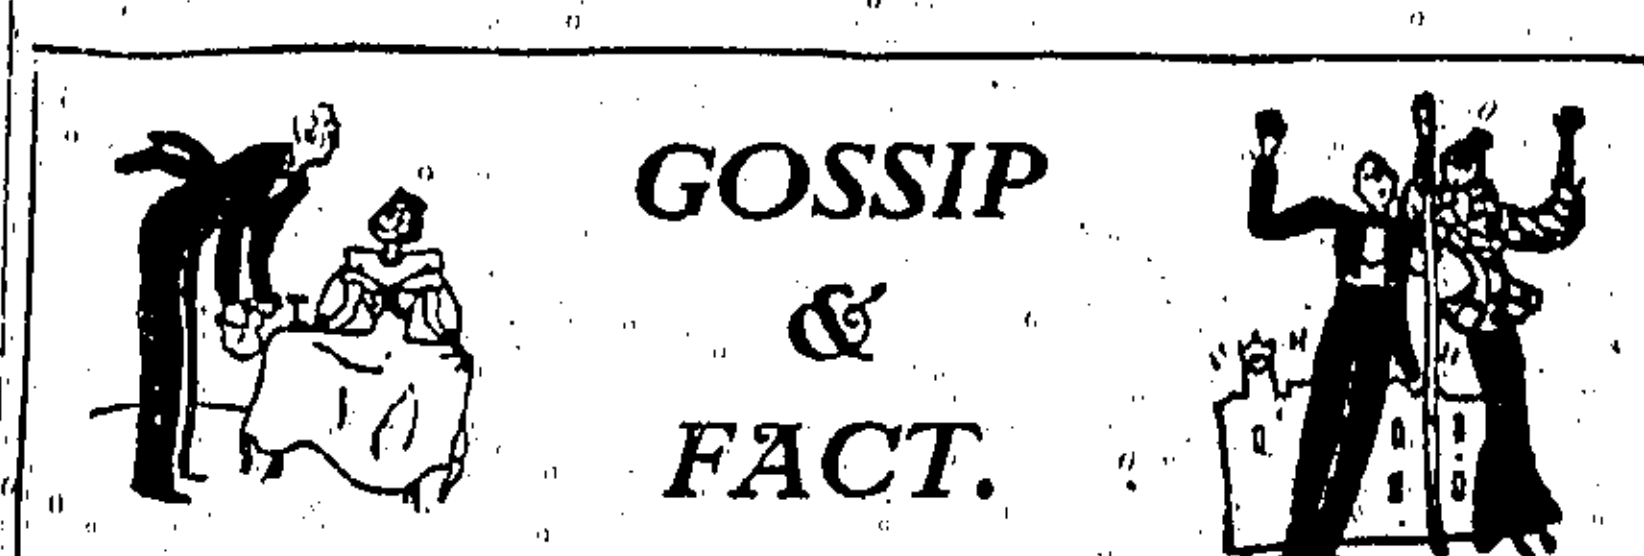

Nearly all the action was filmed at Blackpool, a fact which emphasises the exclusively British character of the film.

"GIRLS ABOUT TOWN."

LILYAN'S GOWN—SHE COULDN'T SIT DOWN!

A trade notice states:— Lilyan Tashman "sat" down standing up" to keep her clothes from getting wrinkled between scenes of "Girls About Town." Hollywood's version of life among the super-gold diggers which comes to the King's Theatre on Sunday next.

The device used by Miss Tashman and by Kay Francis, who is co-featured with her in the play, was (Continued on previous column.)

Rival to Public-Houses.

Referring to the growth of temperance during the past 25 years, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, said at a meeting of the Church of England Temperance Society, "The pictures have been a most potent rival to the public-house in the entertainment of our people."

He added that he saw no helplessness in any proposals to coerce our people into temperance by mere prohibition. "I believe that a great agency for promoting temperance would be the conversion of those horrid old public-houses in the nature of drinking shops with snug secret parlours and partitions into roomy, healthy, decent places of refreshment where food can be supplied as well as drink," he said.

Hollywood in a Play.

Strong inducements have been held out recently to Adolphe Menjou to appear in person on the West End stage. With his production, "It Might Happen to You," now successfully launched in the provinces, Julian Wylie has turned his attention to "Sound Stage Seven," the play about Hollywood which he recently brought back from New York.

Menjou was approached shortly before he sailed for America and terms were discussed. Certain film contracts have to be fulfilled, but these are not likely to take very long, and when they are finished negotiations will be resumed, with every possibility of Mr. Menjou playing the lead in a London production.

The present title of the play will be altered to "Sound Floor."

Directors' Mail.

Film stars have no corner on the fan mail market! Although players receive letters by the thousands each day from admirers throughout the country, their lesser-known co-workers, while outdistanced in quantity, are not forgotten. Whereas the actors' mail comprises requests for photos and "raves" about their work, the non-acting group draws entreaties for advice. Scattered among the critical fan-mail of such directors as Ernst Lubitsch and Josef von Sternberg are the invariable "how can I become a star?" communications. Cameramen like Karl ("Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde") Struss continually are written by amateur photographers who, besides wanting to know how to crash the gate, ask how certain effects were gained.

THE ALICE MEMORIAL HOSPITAL.

LOSS ON YEAR'S WORKING REPORTED AT THE ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING.

HEAVY DEATH ROLL DUE TO PULMONARY TUBERCULOSIS.

The Hon. Dr. S. W. T'so occupied the chair at the annual general meeting of the Alice Memorial and Affiliated Hospitals which was held in the Board Room of the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce yesterday, and during the course of his speech, the chairman remarked that there was a debit balance on the year's working. Fortunately, this was not very large and he added that it was not without reluctance that the Executive Committee decided to increase the hospital charges slightly.

Those present at the meeting were:—The Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Mr. Paul Laufer, Mr. J. M. Wong, Mr. P. S. Cassidy, Mr. M. J. Key Rev. F. Short, Dr. A. Lydesiam, Mr. H. R. Forsyth (representing Messrs. Linstead and Davis, Hon. Treasurers), Mrs. A. Hughes (Matron), Dr. R. M. Gibson, (superintendent) and Dr. F. R. Ashton (secretary).

CHAIRMAN'S REVIEW OF THE YEAR.

The Chairman in moving the adoption of the report and accounts said:—"You will find, in the report, a short history of the development of our medical work for the poor of the Colony. It began in the year 1881—50 years ago and, through the support of many residents of the Colony, has steadily grown. During these 50 years many changes have taken place and the hospitals have had a widespread influence in extending the knowledge of the benefits of western medicine among the Chinese and have contributed, in no small degree, to the improvement in the health of the Colony.

Other institutions have since been founded on similar lines and a spirit of co-operation prevails with these hospitals. But there is still great need for more hospital accommodation, when we consider the large numbers who are now willing to enter hospital for treatment compared with the reluctance of former years. Great opportunities are open to philanthropists to provide modern hospitals.

Donations Asked.

It is interesting to note that, in the past year, the number of in-patients in our hospitals has increased to 1,038, the largest on record. This indicates that the institutions are meeting a definite need and should encourage us to go forward with the collection of funds for a new Nethersole Hospital Building which is now urgently needed.

Reference to page 12 of the annual report will show that a beginning has been made and we are very grateful to all who have subscribed to the Building Fund. There are still wards and rooms for which we are seeking donors and we would urge friends of our hospitals to give an early response to this appeal.

"While asking for the help of those who can afford to give a ward or a room we would also ask all who are able to help with smaller donations to do so as soon as possible, as every donation brings the new building nearer to its realization.

As to our medical work, a large variety of diseases have been treated in the out-patient department and in the wards. Many of the in-patients are seriously ill when admitted into the hospitals; but there is a gradual improvement in bringing cases earlier than was done in past years. However, an effort should be made to spread the knowledge of the early symptoms of the various diseases so that treatment may be sought at the very beginning of the diseases.

A Debit Balance.

With regard to our financial position, we have been compelled to limit our expenditure during 1931. Though there is a debit balance, it is not as large as it would have been if the dollar had not increased in its sterling value in the later months of the year. The Executive Committee reluctantly decided to make a small increase in the hospital charges; but the staff was given full discretion to remit part or the whole of the charges in suitable cases. No one is, therefore, refused admission because of poverty.

Our best thanks are accorded to all those who have helped the Hospitals by giving donations or help by serving in various ways. On page 22 of the annual report you will note a total sum of $2,047.94 was received from Churches, Schools, philanthropic institutions and many kind friends in Hong Kong and England; also on pages 10 to 11 a long list of gifts. We are very grateful indeed to them for their practical interest in the work of our hospitals. Special mention must be made here of the $1,000 donated by the Women's Guild and M.C.L. for which we heartily thank Mrs. Creasy who, as we all know, has been most untiring in working for the cause of Charity. We are sorry that she is leaving Hong Kong very soon on the retirement of her husband, the Hon. Mr. Creasy and we wish them both every happiness in their retirement.

Help Appreciated.

We have again to thank the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau for his valuable service in collecting donations from Chinese friends. Our best thanks are also due to Mr. H. R. Forsyth and Mr. H. Summerfelt of Messrs. Linstead and Davis, Hon. Treasurers, for the time and thought they have given to the hospital finances; and also to Mr. J. Fleming of Messrs. Lowe Bingham and Matthews for auditing the accounts.

We desire to thank Dr. J. C. Macgown for his services as consulting surgeon, Dr. Hoehling for special help in gynecological work during the absence of Dr. A. Sydenham and Dr. A. V. Greaves for examining and reporting on bacteriological specimens.

Finally I should like to mention that our endowment fund is not a large one and the interest derived therefrom is very small. Practically all our work depends entirely on annual subscriptions. I would suggest that this Fund should be increased and we would welcome gifts to this fund. Our work is increasing and the poor are always with us. Let us continue our efforts, therefore, to assist them when sickness overtakes them.

With these few remarks I beg to move that the report and statement of accounts be adopted. When the motion is seconded they will be open for discussion and I shall be pleased to answer any questions.

Mr. Cassidy seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Officials Appointed.

The Hon. Dr. T'so was elected Chairman and Mr. Paul Laufer, Deputy Chairman, for 1932.

The following were elected to the General Committee:—Messrs. Lam Yum Chuen, Mr. Tsam Shiu Hong, Mr. Chau Yue Tung, Mr. Choy Chong, Mr. Foo Sik, Mr. Lu Tak Chung, Mr. Kan Tung Fo, Mr. Ko Leong Hoe, Mr. K. F. Lay, Mr. Li Lu Cheung, Mr. Li Tso Fong, Mr. H. S. Mok, Mr. Pun Hiu Cho, Mr. Harry Hong Shing, Mr. Tao Ka Po, Mr. Wong Oi Kat, Mr. Woo Hay Tong, Mr. Fung Wai Shing, Mr. Ng Lu Wan, Mr. Tse Yat Cho, Mr. Tsang Po Ki, Mr. Chan Poon Tin, Mr. Chan Lu Tin, Rev. F. Short.

The following gentlemen were elected to the Executive Committee for 1932: Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, Mr. J. M. Wong, Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, Hon. Sir Henry Pollock, K.C., and Hon. Mr. W. E. L. Shen ton.

The meeting concluded with thanks to the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau for collecting the Chinese donations, to Messrs. H. R. Forsyth and A. Summerfelt of Messrs. Linstead and Davis, for their services as Hon. Treasurers, to Messrs. Lowe Bingham and Matthews for auditing the accounts, the Chairman, and Chamber of Commerce for the use of the Board Room.

Superintendent's Report.

The Superintendent's report stated, inter alia:—"The Alice Memorial Hospital was built in 1887, and, as the number of patients increased, the Nethersole, Ho Miu Ling, and the Alice Memorial Maternity Hospitals and a Hostel for Nurses were added. All the buildings were opened free of debt through the generous donations of residents in Hong Kong and, with the exception of the site of the original Alice Hospital, all the sites were free gifts by the London Missionary Society and the Hong Kong Government.

"At the present time, the most urgent need is a New Nethersole Hospital. A modern hospital in Bonham Road has replaced the original Alice Memorial Hospital, which was situated in Hollywood Road, and the next step is the erection of a modern Nethersole Hospital. As the annual income has been used so that the sick poor should receive the greatest possible benefit, no attempt has been made to obtain profits for the erection of new buildings, hence the necessity for the appeal for funds now being issued.

Appeal for Funds.

The Special Committee appointed to collect funds for this scheme, desires to acknowledge with thanks the generous donations already received and earnestly appeals for additional subscriptions, so that there may be no delay in undertaking the erection of the proposed new hospital building. The Committee seeks to call attention to the list of Wards and Rooms, which may be named by the donors of the sums stated, and hopes that an early response will be made by many who are able to give in this way.

During the year a large number of patients were treated in the wards and a more reasonable attitude with regard to treatment in hospital is developing and parents are more willing to leave their children in hospital than was formerly the case.

Pulmonary diseases, acute and chronic, have been prevalent; the mortality has been high chiefly due to the habit of keeping windows closed, the poor residence to infection from the lack of nourishing food because of poverty, and delay in seeking treatment in the early stage of the diseases.

The heavy loss of life due to pulmonary tuberculosis is deplorable, and no definite step has been taken to work out a scheme which would lead to a reduction in the mortality rate and an improvement in the health of the Colony.

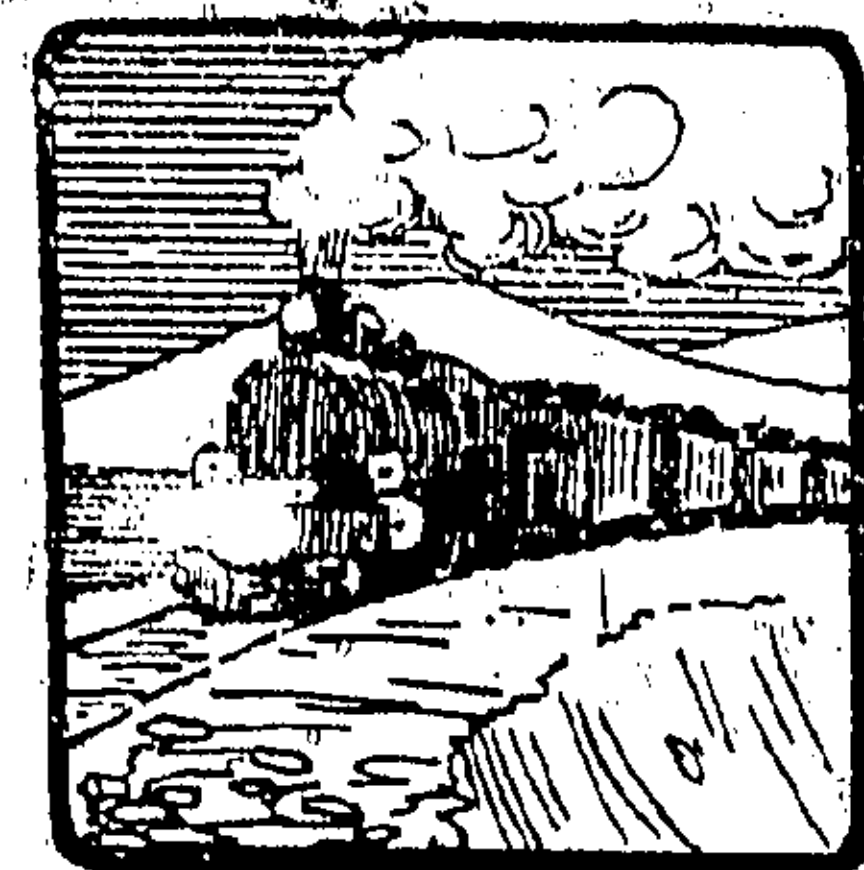

Finances.

The financial position, at the beginning of the year received careful consideration, and in anticipation of a large debit balance the Executive Committee reluctantly decided to make a small increase in the hospital charges, which resulted in a larger income from reimbursements; while the fees were increased to patients who could afford to pay them, the Committee wishes it to be understood that no one is refused admission because of poverty, full discretion being given to the staff to remit part or whole of the charges in suitable cases.

The improvements in the sterling rate of the Hong Kong dollar later in the year also helped to improve the financial outlook. A "Pound Day" organized by the Matron and Nurses added to the income, contributions in medical comforts or donations being received to the value of about $1,000. It has not been possible, however, to avoid a debit balance on the year's working.

EMPIRE CURRENCY.

IMPORTANT PROPOSALS AT OTTAWA CONFERENCE.

We are indebted to the Asiatic Petroleum Co., Ltd., for sending us the following interesting excerpt from the Daily Telegraph, which has been forwarded by their London office:—

I understand that at the forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa the question of an Empire currency will be fully discussed. Proposals will be put forward with the object of rehabilitating silver for banking and currency purposes.

If these proposals are ratified, it is believed that the banks of the Empire will be asked to carry part of their metallic reserves in silver. It will also be recommended that existing debased silver currency should be withdrawn and replaced by coins of pre-war standard.

A DAM FRACAS.

ABERDEEN WORKMEN FALL OUT.

SERIOUS AFFRAY AT THE RESERVOIR.

A serious disturbance among workmen engaged on the lower dam at the Aberdeen Reservoir was mentioned in charging four men before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday.

It was stated that on Wednesday, when rubble and earth began to slide down the slope of an embankment, a carpenter was struck by a stone. An earth coddie who was on the top of the slope was held to be responsible and a general attack began in which all the workmen joined, including a foreman. The police arrived in time to prevent a serious situation.

Sgt. Cunningham told the Magistrate that more trouble was feared as during the night some fifty coddies had got away from the dam. The foreman was bound over in a sum of $100 to be of good behaviour for a year. The carpenter and an earth carrier were also bound over, in a sum of $50 each, while the fourth man was discharged.

HANDLING LOTTERY TICKETS.

HEAVY FINES FOR THREE OFFENDERS.

As a sequel to a police raid on 4, Tung Wo Lane, three Chinese were charged before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court yesterday with (1) keeping a common gaming house, (2) possession of 6,088 tickets, and (3) writing or printing the tickets. Two of them pleaded guilty to all the charges, while the third admitted the second two counts only.

In accepting the pleas, Inspector Shaftain said he was convinced that the premises were the headquarters of the Hong Kong po pin concern, as the place was being run in a very large scale, over 6,000 tickets being seized together with printing type all set up similar to the printing on the tickets. All the defendants were found working on the tickets.

Several previous convictions for similar offences were produced against the three defendants, and one against the second. The first two defendants were each fined $500 or one month's hard labour on the first charge, while a similar sentence was imposed on all three accused on the second count, the sentences to run concurrently. On the third charge, a fine of $100 or an additional month's imprisonment was passed on all defendants.

Naval and military units will then march past His Excellency in columns of route, and through certain streets of Hong Kong.

The Hong Kong Volunteer Force, including the two new units, the Anzacs Corps and the Air Force section, will parade at full strength and will be followed by members of the Merchant Navy, St. John Ambulance, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides and Guards Association.

At the Cenotaph the G.O.C. British Troops will be accompanied by the G.S.O., A.A. and Q.M.G. i/c Adm., and his A.D.C. The Commodore will be attended by his staff.

SALE OF A GIRL.

CHARGE AGAINST FOUR WOMEN.

Four women appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court yesterday on a charge of being concerned in a transaction in which a girl, 10 years of age, was to have been sold for a sum of $210.

On an application made by Inspector Shaftain, defendants were remanded until to-morrow morning on bail of $800 for the first defendant, $250 each for the second and third, and $100 for the fourth.

Inspector Shaftain explained that the fourth defendant had agreed to buy the girl from the first and deposited $500 as security. Some dispute arose afterwards when the fourth defendant wanted her money back. When she found that she was unable to get back her security she went to the police and in consequence all the women were arrested for being concerned in the transaction.

COLONY'S MUSICAL TREAT.

WORLD FAMOUS TENOR GIVES RECITAL.

LOMELINO DA SILVA AT PENINSULA HOTEL.

Senior Lomelino da Silva secured a personal triumph as well as a triumph for his art at his song recital at the Peninsula Hotel Rose Room last night. His charming personality, equally with his beautiful tenor voice, captivated his large audience, which repeatedly called him back to the stage, where he gracefully obliged with new numbers from his extensive repertoire.

Da Silva opened his well-chosen programme by singing the beautiful Italian aria "Questa o quella" from Verdi's "Rigoletto" and "M'appari, tutta amor" from Puccini's "Turk in Asia". In both he showed himself a skilful vocalist possessing a strong and resonant voice, evenly produced throughout its range. Next came a delightful rendering of Tchaikovsky's celebrated "Serenade de Don Juan" while the singing of "La fleur que tu m'avais jetee" from Bizet's "Carmen" was vociferously encored.

A group of Spanish and Portuguese songs were most enthusiastically received, while two English songs, delightfully rendered, received well merited applause.

Mr. da Silva was generous with his encores, and one of them, a delightful trifle "Love is a Bubble," proved in the manner of its reception that the audience was by no means completely highbrow.

Miss Luba Pecker.

Interpersed with Mr. da Silva's groups of songs were a number of piano solos by Miss Luba Pecker. This accomplished artist accompanied the songs of Mr. da Silva with more technique than sympathy, but her solo played the large audience. Miss Pecker is essentially a solo pianist, albeit a very talented one, and at the end of her last rendering she was presented with a basket of flowers.

WHITEHALL OFFICIAL

MAY BE SENT OUT TO CHINA

(Reuter's Special Service.)

LONDON, June 2. Two members of His Majesty's Consular Service in China are at present working at the Foreign Office, stated Sir John Simon, the Foreign Secretary, in a reply in the House of Commons yesterday to Major-General Sir Alfred Knox.

Sir John Simon stated that one of the special officials has been attached to the Foreign Office for special duty since October, 1925, in connection with the various negotiations with the Chinese Government.

The other, who had been attached in accordance with a long standing practice had worked at the Foreign Office for twenty months.

Sir Alfred Knox suggested that it would be advisable to send out the man who had been at the Foreign Office since 1925 in order to gain a first-hand knowledge of present conditions in China.

The Foreign Secretary replied that this official was very well informed, and added: "We shall make the best arrangements for service in the public interests."

Sir Alfred Knox suggested that the official in question, after seven years, was out of touch with the present feeling of British residents in China.

EPSOM DERBY
TELEvised
SUCCESS OF BRITISH EXPERIMENT

(Reuter's Special Service.)

LONDON, June 2. Flickering black and white images, which dimly resolved into galloping horses proved the success of experiments of British television, when the Derby was shown on a screen in a London cinema, simultaneously with the race at Epsom.

It was the first time the Derby has been televised. The experiment was carried out on a seven-foot screen; the pictures being flashed from a caravan on the Downs, where six cables were laid under the course.

A large mirror drum with thirty revolving mirrors caught the action of the horses which a London audience of two thousand saw in a blackened theatre. The black and white objects made rabbit-like bounds across the screen.

The experimenter is satisfied with its success.

ORWELL FINISHES UP
NINTH

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, June 1. Orwell was a hot favourite for the Derby right up to the last moment and his defeat, utter and complete, disappointed all the experts, who had plumped for him without a single exception.

He went to the post one of the shortest-priced favourites for many years. Owing to the heavy backing on the course, his starting price shortened to 5-4.

Royal Party.

The brilliant victory of Mr. Tom Walls' April the Fifth, which was cleverly ridden by Lane, was witnessed from the Royal Stand at Epsom by the King and Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York, the Duke of Gloucester, Prince George, the Princess Royal and Earl Harwood, the race being run in perfect weather in the presence of an immense crowd.

Mr. Tom Walls, the noted film and stage comedian, who has delighted lovers of farce all over the world through the medium of British pictures, was jubilant when his horse, which occupied sixth place in the Two Thousand Guineas, passed the post a good winner.

Heavy Going.

The going was inclined to be on the heavy side and stamina won the day. The suspicion regarding the stamina of Mr. W. Singer's Orwell, lightly discarded by all the critics after the Two Thousand Guineas, were more than fulfilled.

The horse, which had previously won eight races in eight starts, was never in the picture after the first mile, and finished ninth.

The Agt Khun's Dastur, well backed at 18 to 1, ran well enough, but was unable to fight off the challenge of April the Fifth (100-0) at the distance post. Lord Rosebery's Miracle was third, a short head behind Dastur, and Royal Dancer occupied fourth place.

LOCAL SWEEP

SYNDICATE GETS $240,000.

LADY TEACHER'S BAD-GOOD LUCK.

At least three people in Hong Kong have cause to bless this year's Epsom Derby: they are Miss Claire Muro, Mrs. H. A. Rodgers and Mrs. Ng Sau Sing.

Miss Muro shared a ticket in the Calcutta Sweep with Mrs. Rodgers, and they drew Porto Fino, which horse ran a very strong race until within two furlongs of the finishing post, when it failed to exhibit sufficient stamina.

VILLAGE ROAD MURDER CASE

Allegations Against Accused

GUN OR POISON?

CHRISTIE IN THE
WITNESS-BOX

YESTERDAY was the tenth hearing of the case in which Cheng Kwok Yau (20) is charged before Mr. Wynne Jones with procuring the murder of George Fung.

Edward Zimmermann, whose evidence had occupied the whole of the two previous sittings, concluded his evidence yesterday. Mr. Geo. K. Hall Brutton, for the defence, continued his cross-examination for a further half an hour yesterday and the re-examination by the Assistant Attorney General, Mr. R. E. Lindsell, lasted a little over twenty minutes.

Zimmermann's evidence will be read over to him some day next week. The magisterial notes of the evidence occupies sixty pages of typewritten matter and in view of its length, it was decided to defer the reading of it to a later date when a whole afternoon would be available.

Sydney Cecil Christie stepped into the witness-box yesterday and commenced his evidence, and after answering the Assistant Attorney General for an hour, adjournment was reached.

WHAT HAPPENED AT A DINNER PARTY.

Mr. Brutton's first question, upon resuming his cross-examination of Edward Zimmermann, was:—

Now, about your times on March 24: you told us that you went down to Village Road somewhere about 9 o'clock.—Between 9 or 9.15 p.m.

How do you fix that time?—I remember we left the Pauline Dancing Academy about 8.30 p.m. or 8.45 p.m.

What time did you go to this Pauline Dancing Academy?—Soon after it opened.

Was dancing going on when you got there?—I cannot remember.

Don't the girls arrive and dancing begin at 8.30 p.m.?—That I don't know.

As usual, I suppose Cheng paid for your admission?—He bought three tickets.

What about the dancing tickets, who bought the first lot?—I do not remember.

Do you remember the number of tickets?—I think we bought 24 worth.

How many tickets?—Ten.

Did you dance every dance?—I danced whenever there was a ticket available.

Cheng and Lau did likewise?—Yes.

Dance Tickets.

When witness was asked what he meant when he said "whenever there was a ticket available," he explained that the tickets were all put in the centre of the table and after every dance the boy would come round and collect one from each man who danced. When the stock ran out, witness told Cheng and the latter bought some more tickets.

Mr. Brutton: Then where did you go?—We went to get the car.

In Stanley Street?—I don't remember where the car was parked.

Do you remember having trouble in starting the car?—I was told to crank the car.

Doesn't that show that the self-starter was not working?—The engine might have been cold.

You cranked away for quite a considerable time?—About two minutes.

Might have been more?—I don't think so.

Then you went down to Village Road?—Quite so.

You remember passing two Indian constables?—I saw no Indian constables.

Do you remember seeing any Chinese detectives?—I did not see any one on our way there.

So that your memory as regards that part of the evening is rather vague?—I don't agree with you.

If P. O. Lee Shan says the Austin overtook and passed him at 9.45 p.m. along Shan Kwong Road, do you say he is wrong?—He may have had a watch on him and I had none.

Discrepancy in Times.

So that you are not sure of your times?—I last saw the time at the Academy.

You say that the Indian constable passed you and spoke to you?—I spoke to him.

How long do you say the defendant was with you?—(Continued on next column.)

GEORGES PHILIPPAR
DISASTERNO ONE CAN EXPLAIN
CAUSE OF FIRE

Captain's Statement To Reuter

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

MARSEILLES, June 2.

Nobody can explain the cause of the fire on the steamer Georges Philippard.

No one really knows anything, declared Captain Vioix when interviewed by Reuter on the arrival of the steamer General Veyron. He denied that the fire had been smouldering in the hold. Regarding a passenger's assertion that the fire started at several points simultaneously, he said: Personally I know nothing and saw nothing.

The vessel which brought the majority of the officers and crew of the Georges Philippard was met by the Chairman and General Manager of the Messageries Maritimes, who expressed the companies' sympathies.

It is now practically certain that the journalist, M. Albert Londres, was incinerated in his cabin.

FAIR TO SHOWERY.

YESTERDAY'S WEATHER REPORT, FORECAST AND REMARKS, ISSUED BY THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY AT 5.45 P.M., STATED:—

THE TYPHOON IS SITUATED ABOUT 200 MILES S.S.W. OF HONG KONG MOVING W. OR W.N.W.

LOCAL FORECAST:—E. WINDS, MODERATE; FAIR TO SHOWERY.

TYPHOON WARNING.

The following typhoon warning has been received by the American Consulate-General from the Manila Observatory: Manila, June 2, 8 a.m.—Typhoon in about 118deg. Long. E. and 20deg. Lat. N., moving N.W.

NO DANGER EXPECTED LOCALLY.

Late in the evening (9 p.m.) it was gathered from the Royal Observatory that at 2 o'clock in the afternoon the typhoon was about 200 miles S.S.W. of Hong Kong, moving W. or W.N.W.

It was expected that the typhoon would probably continue on a westerly track and, passing south of Hainan, enter the coast of Annam in the course of this morning.

The heavy shower which fell shortly before five time yesterday did not amount to very much measured in terms of inches. According to the Royal Observatory, the total rainfall from 4 p.m. on Wednesday to 4 p.m. yesterday was 1.15 inches.

ant was inside the house?—About five minutes.

So that when the Indian constable spoke to you, Cheng was inside the house?—He came out of the house and saw me speaking to the constable.

The Indian constable puts the time at 10.30; big discrepancy between your evidence and the time given by the constable.—That I don't know.

So that if you are right, the Indian must be wrong?—That I don't know.

So that if you piece the evidence together, the times must have been between 9.45 and 10.30 p.m.—I don't agree with that.

This concluded Zimmermann's cross-examination. In re-examining the witness, Mr. Lindsell said:—

You have told my friend that you cannot remember where you were staying at the time when you overheard the conversation between the defendant and Miss Au on the Austin car?—Yes.

Between March 5 and March 24, in how many different places were you staying?—I have slept in Pun's house for a night or two, in the Kun Tin Club, Lamtai, Hotel Nathan, Chui On Club and Tang Shan Hotel.

The Au Sisters.

Did you, in fact, know the two Misses Au apart by name?—I was only introduced to one Miss Au by Cheng.

And you did not know her Christian name?—No.

Now, as regards your statement to the police: you were arrested on March 21?—Yes.

You were questioned and locked in a cell?—Yes.

Up to the time you made your statement, you did not see or consult Christie or anyone else?—No.

You remember the actual date on which you made your statement?—It was the third day after my arrest. I think it was on April 3.

You said that you sent for Sergt. Fitches?—Yes.

And where did you go?—To a private room in the Police Headquarters.

Did you make your statement by word of mouth or how?—I wrote on a piece of paper.

Were you asked any questions?—I cannot recollect. I remember being cautioned.

While you were actually writing it out, were you asked any questions?—No.

And you wrote the whole of it out in your own hand?—Yes.

You told Mr. Brutton that you were never examined on that statement?—The police read it over to me.

JAPAN'S POLICY IN MANCHURIASTATEMENT BY VISCOUNT SAITO"GREATER CONFIDENCE IN JAPAN NECESSARY"

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Tokyo, June 2.

REPLYING to a questionnaire, the Premier, in a written statement inclusive to Reuter, emphatically denies the rumours of serious tension between Japan and the Soviet, though he expresses the earnest desire that the Soviet may see her way to repose greater confidence in Japan by discontinuing the concentration of troops in the Far East which is considered the primary cause of unfounded rumours. Expressing the belief that a conclusion of the non-aggression pact between Japan and the Soviet would weaken the force of the Kellogg Pact and be the equivalent of establishing "those special intimacies which so often have been deprecated," Viscount Saito asserts that the Soviet's interests in the Chinese Eastern Railway are not considered to militate against Japan's interests in Manchuria, where the policy of the "open door" entitles the respect of all vested interests, irrespective of national complexion. Consequently, "it is not considered desirable that Japan acquire any interests possessed by others in the C.E.R."

Other points stressed include:

Firstly, the hope that circumstances will not arise to cause Japan's withdrawal from the League.

Secondly, no Customs Union or economic federation between Japan and Manchuria is contemplated.

Thirdly, the recognition of the Manchukuo will depend on the new State's proved capacity for maintaining itself.

Fourthly, the annexation of Manchuria is certainly not desired, nor does Japan wish illegitimately to control the policy of the Manchukuo authorities.

Viscount Saito's statement on Japan's Foreign Policy to the Diet will be made on June 3, and will be available at the principal Embassies, Legations and Consulates.

STRUGGLE WITH ALLEGED SMUGGLERSSERIOUS AFFAIR NEAR WOOSUNG

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

SHANGHAI, June 2.

A serious affray between a Customs cruiser and alleged smugglers aboard junks resulted in five persons being killed and three wounded outside Woosung this morning.

The Customs cruiser, Chungtao, which was cruising in the vicinity sent a picket boat to investigate the junk's papers one of which appeared unsatisfactory.

The junk on the picket boat tried to board the junk and search it, but met with heavy rifle fire, four Chinese and one Swede, named Kondap, being killed instantly and three Chinese wounded. The picket boat pushed off under the shock of assault but later those aboard returned fire. But under cover of a heavy haze the junk got away. It is still being searched for.

Mr. Kondap was third officer of the Chungtao.

REICHSTAG TO BE DISSOLVEDNEW CABINET NOW IN THE MAKING

BERLIN, June 1.

Herr von Papen has succeeded in filling the majority of the posts in his cabinet, but the Centre Party is regarding the ministry with marked disfavour and the political situation, already dark, has further clouded over.

Meanwhile, President Hindenburg has signified his approval of the names submitted to him by Herr von Papen. The only member of the Brüning Cabinet who has survived the downfall is Professor Herman Warmbold, the Minister for National Economy, who acknowledges no party allegiance.

It is officially announced that Herr von Papen has selected his Ministry as follows: Minister of the Interior, von Gayl; Minister of Defence, General von Schleicher; National Economy, Prof. Warmbold.

Agriculture, Baron von Braun; Transport, Baron Rubezahl.

The appointments to the remaining four posts, including the Foreign Ministry, will be made tomorrow, though it is regarded as practically certain that Herr von Neurath will accept the Foreign Office portfolio.

After the Ministry has been completed, Herr von Papen will seek a vote of confidence from the Reichstag and if the vote is refused the Reichstag will be dissolved.

Government Opposed.

LATER.

The Centre Party has decided to vote against the Government and President Hindenburg will tomorrow dissolve the Reichstag.

CRICKET SEASON FOR YOUNG MEN.

PLEA FOR NATURAL DEVELOPMENT.

The county season began on April 30, and this summer nothing is likely to distract attention from form in everyday first-class games. There will be only one Test match—against All-India at Lord's. Counties must concentrate on two main points: (1) the job of putting balance-sheets in order, and (2) that of providing stimulating play as a breeding-ground for cricketers. It is to go next winter to Australia. Sunshine will settle the first of these two problems, granted fine weather, there is seldom anything wrong with the game, apart from the spirit in which it is played. Some counties are about to try the experiment of "late starts" to matches and a drawing of stumps an hour or so after 6.30. I doubt the influence of the change in large towns. Folk who leave offices and shops at half-past five will need to be abnormally rabid about cricket to "traipse" up to Old Trafford for an hour or two's play, with the sun on the wane all the time. Besides, it is notorious that the closing hour of any first-class match nowadays is conducted entirely on the "safety first" principle; batsmen consider it a sacred duty in the day's "last hour" to keep up their wickets until the morning.

Clubs will improve balance-sheets best by giving us good cricket, keenly fought, with every man acting according to his true nature—the hither hitting, the stonewalling stone-walling. As all costs there must be an avoidance this year of formulae, of any sort of reach-me-down policy applied right and left throughout a team. Every cricketer in the land must be left free, as the Australian cricketer is always free, to develop the cricket which essentially is in his bones. Given the right atmosphere, honest and inspiring, we ought to be able to discover fresh talent.

The problem of the year is already looming before all students of the game: Where are the bowlers for Australia—and Bradman? Apart from Larwood, there is not a single fast bowler seriously worth attention—unless Voce can be called a fast (as distinct from a "swinging knock-on-over-the-wicket") bowler. Voce is potential, but A. W. Carr should make him aim at the off stump; given that preliminary direction, the swing "with the arm" might add buttnations to Voce's attack. Larwood, of course, is capable of great bowling; unfortunately he has not always kept us confident in his psychological or physical stamina.

Fast bowling is ruinous in Australia, unless very strong and fast.

VILLAGE ROAD MURDER CASE.

Do you remember coming to my office?—Yes.

For what purpose?—To answer questions about that statement.

In fact I went right through that statement, from start to finish with you; is that right?—Yes, sir.

Was Lau locked up with you before or after you made that statement?—After.

No Drinks While Detained.

You also admitted to my friend that you were a devil to talk after a few drinks?—Yes, sir.

Since you were arrested, have you had any alcoholic drinks?—I only wish I had. (Laughter.)

From that I take it that you mean "no."—Quite so.

In reply to a question regarding names in directories, witness said that in his experience people who worked for a short time with any firm did not have their names published in the directories.

Zimmerman then went on to give the Court a short resume of the conversation which took place between the accused and himself on the night of March 18, when Cheng asked him to get a knife. It was as follows:—

Cheng: Zimmerman, could you get me a knife or dagger?

Zimmerman: What do you want with a knife or a dagger?

Cheng: I wish to go to the Nathan Hotel to catch hold of Fung now.

Zimmerman: It's so late now, where can a knife or dagger be found?

Cheng: You have no pluck. You can only "yap" but you won't dare to perform.

Continuing his re-examination, Mr. Lindsell said:—

You told my friend you had access to the billiard table and gymnasium at Police Headquarters?—Yes.

Had you access to them at times when the billiard table and gymnasium were open to police officers?—No, sir, no sir.

Answering further questions regarding the dinner at Yee Fong Chan, witness said that Cheng suggested the dinner and as a matter of fact when the bill came, Cheng gave witness $40 to pay for it.

Mr. Lindsell: You said that the plot concocted in the restaurant was to go over to the Nathan Hotel and induce him to come out of his room and for you to hold him while the accused smashed his face?—That is what he said at first.

Did he make any other suggestion or plan beyond that?—No, sir.

Visit to Nathan Hotel.

Witness then described their visit to the Nathan Hotel and in reply to Mr. Lindsell said he was not sure whether Cheng Shing was with them. He described the positions of the rooms engaged by him; the one which Fung lived and the one which accused had taken.

Mr. Lindsell: How did you know what room Fung was in?—I saw the surname on a board. I did not know if it was Geo. Fung but the room number was 407.

Is there a visitors' board on the boy's desk?—Yes.

Do you remember the actual number of the room at which you knocked a second time?—No, 405, I think it was.

And when you knocked at the door, was the accused in sight?—Yes.

Do you remember whether the accused himself ever gave you the number of Fung's room?—I think he said 402.

Do you remember whether Ah Sing was present when this knocking at the door took place?—Yes, by that time Ah Sing was with Cheng.

Coming to your conversation in room 409 or 410, after the failure of this little plot, who first suggested the idea of getting rid of Fung?—Cheng.

Are you absolutely certain of that?—I heard him talking to Christie.

Are you absolutely certain that neither you nor Christie first suggested the idea of killing Fung?—Yes, absolutely certain.

Witness, in answer to further questions, said that he was wrong when he had said earlier that he had to crank the Austin before he proceeded with Cheng and Lau to 50, Village Road, on the night of the murder. The cranking took place at 0.48 p.m. when they left the South China Athletic Association before proceeding to Jimmy's Kitchen.

When you left Jimmy's Kitchen, did you have any trouble in starting that car?—No. Cheng started the car.

With the self-starter?—Yes.

When you left Central to go to Village Road, was there any trouble?—No.

Or when you left Village Road?—No.

Do you know whether there are buses running by Queen's Road direct to West Point?—Yes, sir. I have taken them myself.

CHRISTIE GOES IN THE BOX.

The next witness called, was Sydney Cecil Christie (30) who said he was born in Hong Kong and that his parents had been dead some years. He said that he had been educated at the Diocesan Boys' School and had been brought up by an adopted uncle. In school he had studied, among other subjects, chemistry.

Witness said that he left Hong Kong for Shanghai when he was seventeen.

Mr. Lindsell: I think you had various jobs up there?—Yes.

Were you ever in trouble in Shanghai?—Yes, sir.

When was that?—In 1931.

I think you got four months' imprisonment for stealing a girl's ring?—Quite so.

Did you, in fact, steal that ring?—

No, sir.

That was not a very fortunate experience perhaps with the Shanghai police. Did you ever have more fortunate experience with them?—In 1930, I arrested an armed robber.

In the Settlement?—Yes.

Any reward?—Only a letter of thanks. (This was produced.)

Witness answering further questions said that he had known Edward Zimmerman since 1931. At one time they were at school together. It was only in 1933 that he saw much of Zimmerman. That was in Shanghai when he lived with him. Christie said he returned in December last year to Hong Kong and obtained a job at a motor service company at 9, Ashley Road, Kowloon. He lived on the premises until March 22, when he lost his job.

Don't let headaches spoil your efficiency in the office or interfere with your evening's amusements. Always keep Genasprin at hand and take two tablets dissolved in a little water the moment you feel pain coming on. Genasprin is far purer than ordinary aspirin and therefore far safer. Quickly and surely it makes pain fade away, and leaves no after-effects whatever. Genasprin retains its wonderful pain-relieving powers "in spite of repeated administration."

"Immediate Relief." The famous racing motorist, Mr. J. J. Hall, writes: "Through severe vibration and lancing about I have suffered from acute headaches. I have tried almost every known make of remedy, and I definitely state that I have found Genasprin infinitely superior to anything else. In addition to bringing immediate relief, Genasprin leaves no unpleasant after-effects whatsoever, soothes the nerves and does all and more than is claimed for it."

with the impartial and aloof attitude of a constitutional monarch. Speaking plainly, it amounts to this: A sovereign whose voice is never heard by his subjects, except on such solemn occasions as the opening of Parliament or the inauguration of a hospital, must be as eloquent and persuasive in dealing with his ministers as the most celebrated of Great Britain's statesmen and orators; a man whose entire time is being taken up by his innumerable social duties must develop a sixth sense—a veritable set of antennae—permitting him to feel the ever-changing pulse of the country while amiably smiling at court receptions and garden parties.

The people say: "The King of England is able to continue in office in spite of all troubles and revolutions shaking the world, simply because he obeys the decisions of his government and never attempts to dictate."

The people seem to forget that, when dealing with a cabinet made up of representatives of one party, the King can never overlook the law of cycles governing politics; a party often outlives its popular appeal long before its leader ceases to be Prime Minister of Great Britain, and the King would lose his popularity in no time should he acquiesce placidly and meekly in each and every plan of the political combination in power.

WHEN KINGLY QUALITIES WERE NEEDED.

The last twenty years in the history of Great Britain provide numerous proofs of the discreet leadership exercised by its King. His dramatic return to London on the morning of August 23, 1931, though containing all elements of a tense climax, should in no way be considered tantamount to the birth of a new George V. Long before the world crisis did away with venerable traditions and precedents, the King on three important occasions had demonstrated the efficiency of his antennae. In the troublesome days of the Irish unrest he had put his foot down and demanded of his hesitating ministers an immediate settlement of that thorny problem of the Empire. In the dark months of 1916, when it had become clear to him that Lloyd George had grown up to be the symbol of victory in the minds of the alarmed Britishers, he was the one who insisted on the creation of the Coalition War Cabinet of the brilliant Welshman. And finally, in the spring of 1923, faced with the necessity of appointing a successor to the ailing Andrew Bonar Law, he scored a master stroke of political strategy; ignoring the clearly indicated candidacy of Lord Curzon, he summoned Stanley Baldwin to Buckingham Palace, thus expressing his sympathy with the prevailing mood of the country, which clamored for a sober business man and minded no words in denouncing the old school diplomats.

All faithful its of history are cursed with sterility. It would be idle speculation to try to guess whether the British Empire would have followed a different course if Queen Victoria or King Edward VII had been handling the manifold tasks which confronted King George V. To one who knew all three of them well and intimately, it seems as though the chief asset of the present British sovereign consists in his having solved a great puzzle which had remained a perennial mystery to both his grandmother and father. He discovered the way of reading the thoughts of that Great Britain which is lying outside of the Houses of Parliament, and this intuition, so rarely, if ever, to be found in a royal palace, overcomes the partisanship of the ministers much more effectively than those venomous letters which Queen Victoria used to address to the stubborn Mr. Gladstone or those celebrated and stinging witticisms dropped around the drawing-rooms of Mayfair by King Edward VII.

THE DEPUTY-AT LARGE OF THE MASSES.

Among the various comments brought forth by the overwhelming triumph of the cabinet of National Union in the elections of October, 1931, one was missing rather conspicuously—the editorial writers failed to note that the victory of the MacDonald-Baldwin-Samuel bloc proved, first of all, the political acumen of King George V, who had foreseen it nine weeks in advance. This ability to tune his mind in harmony with the masses is something which his immediate predecessors on the throne did not possess. His grandmother believed her prerogatives were protected by the Almighty. His father never doubted the ultimate doom of the monarchic regime. King George V, with all due respect to their memories, prefers not to disturb the Supreme Being or anticipate the future, but sets the course of the House of Windsor by that fugitive star known as Majority. Not the majority that sits in Westminster but the majority that lives and laughs and struggles and fights its daily battles throughout the length and width of the British Isles.

It is extremely characteristic of the utter abandon of the public trend of mind that while a detailed and highly coloured account of a few minutes spent by the Prince of Wales in a Whitechapel pub is being cabled to the four corners of the world and offered in explanation of the stability of the throne of the Windsors, no correspondent seems to notice that a much more significant, almost revolutionary, change in the relations between people and Crown has occurred in the course of King George V's reign. As recently as twenty-four years ago, the nation relied upon the government and Parliament to guard its inalienable rights against any possible infringement by the sovereign. When the then youthful Lloyd George was denouncing the interference of the reactionary House of Lords, he made no bones of the fact that he expected to find King Edward VII on the side of what, in the United States, would be termed "special privileges and vested interests." To-day, the staunch leaders of the Labourites publicly pay compliments to King George V for His Majesty's protection of their cause against the excessive demands of the Conservatives, and the masses are viewing Buckingham Palace as the residence of their deputy at large representing that vast and heterogeneous constituency known as the British Empire. This entirely new popular attitude, product and result of the sustained statesmanship of the Crown, would be sufficient in itself to provide an impressive safeguard for the throne, were it not for one danger—the nights of Great Britain are dark and long, and it takes the piercing eye of a rugged navigator to locate the guiding star! Possibly because of his long service in the navy, King George V encounters no difficulties in finding the nebulous majority, but it remains to be seen whether his successors will inherit this particular talent of the present Defender of the Faith. I would venture no prediction as to the probable longevity of the monarchic regime in England, or in any other European country, for that matter, no one could without a thorough knowledge of the essential characteristics of the coming generation of sovereigns involved.

WHEN A THRONE TOTTERS.

"I hope to God that there is no foundation to the rumours which have it that the Prince of Wales may refuse to ascend to the throne when his turn comes," said to me an important British statesman, known for his radical leanings. "That would be really tragic." It would be certain to precipitate the gravest national crisis. The gentleman may have underestimated the capability of the younger brothers of the Prince of Wales and may have paid too much attention to idle gossip but the point he raised was indisputable—the chances for the survival of an outmoded regime solely depend on the personal ability of its titular leader, and the mere readiness to obey the constitution would never suffice to keep a king on his throne in the dynamite-charged atmosphere of after-war Europe. Sometimes—witness the case of Yugoslavia—an open challenge to parliament and a bold suspension of all constitutional guarantees appeal to the masses much more and better succeed in nipping an embryo revolution in the bud.

VILLAGE ROAD MURDER CASE.

Witness said that he met Zimmern again early in March. He said that on or about the 12th or 13th March, he stayed at the Nathan Hotel for two nights, Zimmern paying expenses. Witness only stayed there after his work which was at 7 p.m. and left the Hotel again at 7 a.m.

Saw Fung in Shanghai.

Witness, in answer to Mr. Lindell, said that he had once before seen George Fung and that was in Shanghai. That was the only time he had seen George Fung. He knew him by sight.

Mr. Lindell: Did you ever see him at the Nathan Hotel?—No, sir.

Had you any idea that he was staying there?—None.

Answering further questions, witness said that he knew the accused and first met him on March 20.

Mr. Lindell: How did that meeting come about?—I was introduced to him by Zimmern.

Tell me how that introduction came about?—I rang up Zimmern at about 1.45 p.m. in the South China Athletic Association and as a result of that conversation I got a boy by the name of Edward Souza and waited for Zimmern at 8.30 outside the Majestic Cinema.

Zimmern came along at about 9 p.m. and about half an hour or forty-five minutes later Cheng appeared.

By what means, did he come to the spot?—In a taxi.

Is being there about what time?—About 9.30 or 9.45.

What happened then?—We proceeded to the Yee Fong Chan Restaurant.

At what point were you introduced?—As soon as he arrived.

By—Taxi. (Laughter.)

I met him by whom were you introduced?—Zimmern.

At whose suggestion did you go to the Yee Fong Chan?—Cheng's.

Witness said that he was not at first informed why they went to the Yee Fong Chan. He only understood they were going to a dinner.

He knew they were going to the Yee Fong Chan even before the arrival of Cheng.

What Happened at a Dinner Party.

At the dinner, Zimmern suggested getting in Ah Sing and, Cheng agreeing, Souza was sent out to fetch Ah Sing, who then joined the dinner party. Some girls also came but witness did not know them. There was some conversation during the dinner, and witness said that Cheng, addressing the people in the room said: "I have a friend by the name of Fung. I have offered him money and I have lent him money and he has taken away my girl. I want you all after dinner to go to the Nathan Hotel to beat him up." Witness went on to say that he did not know at the time which Fung was referred to, so he asked, "Who is this Fung and where does he stay?" and Cheng replied "He is staying at the Nathan Hotel." Witness asked, "How do you know," and Cheng is alleged to have replied that he had two men shadowing him all the time.

At about 1.30 a.m. they left the Yee Fong Chan and went to the Hotel Nathan, Cheng remarking, "better go before it's too late."

On the way, witness said, Cheng suggested that he and Cheng Shing should go up first and that the others should follow later. Accordingly accused and Cheng Shing went up by the lift while witness, Zimmern and Souza waited outside at the front door.

Mr. Lindell: Did you notice anything while you were waiting?—Zimmern drew my attention to a suspicious looking character dressed in European style a few feet away from us.

Was he walking past or standing?—Standing.

They waited for ten minutes and then Cheng Shing came down and afterwards witness together with Souza and Zimmern went up by the lift to the fourth floor of the hotel, Cheng Shing not accompanying them.

Mr. Lindell: What was your idea in going to the Hotel Nathan?—As suggested by Cheng, to beat up Fung.

At the Nathan Hotel.

Witness was then asked many questions regarding the positions of room 405, 410, 412 and 402. Christie said that when they went to knock at George Fung's room, Cheng was in the passage watching them. He said that Zimmern went up to room 412 and knocked, and he heard accused swearing at Zimmern.

Did you say anything?—I told Zimmern that that was the wrong room and it should be 402.

What happened then?—Zimmern and myself went to room 402 and I knocked.

What was your purpose in knocking?—To get Fung to come out of his room.

And for what purpose did you want to get him out of his room?—To beat him up as suggested by Cheng.

And were you prepared to do the beating?—No.

To help in the beating?—Yes.

When Zimmern knocked at 412 and you knocked at 402, where was the accused?—He was standing where I first saw him.

Did anyone come out from room 402?—No.

Witness went on to say that after failing to get Fung out of room 402 they moved back a little and Cheng then told them to say that there was a letter from a person named Ah Lau and they consequently went back to room 402 where witness knocked again and gave the message but that had no effect.

Did any voice answer you at the time?—Yes, sir.

What next?—We went back to room 402.

Gun or Poison?

Witness said that Souza was sent out of the room to watch if Fung left his room and then while Zimmern and accused were lying on a bed, smoking opium, Cheng spoke to them and said, "This chap Fung is a rotter and a useless fellow. It would be better if he was put out of the way." After a while accused is alleged to have said again, "Suppose I were to ask you to do it, how much would you want?"

Witness replied, "How am I going to do it?" Cheng is alleged to have said, "With a gun," and witness then said, "Where am I going to get a gun?" Cheng then replied, "It is a pity we are not in Shanghai. I can get you any amount of guns there. If I offered you $10,000 would you do it?"

"I did not reply straight away," said witness, "but afterwards I asked 'Why not use poison?'"

Mr. Lindell: How long afterwards?—A few minutes.

After this Cheng is alleged to have said, "I don't like poison, I would rather use a gun," but after an interval he asked witness the name of the poison intended and witness answered potassium cyanide.

Potassium Cyanide.

Mr. Lindell: Is that a guess or did you know that potassium cyanide is a deadly poison?—I knew it. I had learnt something about it when I was in school.

Had you continued your study at chemistry at all after you left school?—No, sir.

At the Yee Fong Chan and again at the Hotel Nathan, in what language was this conversation between you and the accused carried on?—Partly in English and partly in Chinese.

Do you yourself understand Cantonese?—Perfectly.

And do you speak it perfectly?—Yes.

The case was, at this stage, adjourned until Monday.

icient stamina and dropped behind the first three. Miss Munro is a teacher at the Central British School, and is a very popular member of the younger set in the Colony, being a very keen and more than usually proficient golfer. Both she and Mrs. Rodgers were not entirely without good fortune—apart actual holding of the ticket—for they disposed of a portion of their "chance" to an Indian syndicate for 12,000 rupees while they will receive a bonus for the horse having gone to the starting post.

Mrs. Ng Sau Sing heads a syndicate, the other members of which prefer to remain anonymous. She bought the ticket, which drew Dastur, which came in second, from her son-in-law Mr. Jimmy Choy, Assistant Comptroller of the Nederlansche Indische Handelsbank. The ticket was in the Irish Sweepstake, which of late years has attained greater prominence than the Calcutta Sweepstake, and will "pay a dividend" of $240,000.
